Sophie Brown is a Year 12 student at Epsom Girls' Grammar School. She, like many, has listened to music daily for as long as she can remember. Writing her own songs had a bit of a shy and tentative start, but after lots of encouragement from friends and family Sophie found herself on stage singing and playing her own material for others to enjoy.

"I still get extremely shaky and nervous when I perform", says Sophie, "but I have most definitely gained a lot of confidence from songwriting. I've found my passion and it's one of the best feelings in the world."

Sophie is also very capable with modern music technology and software. She has self-released a song on Spotify under the artist name "girl", and is planning on an EP by the end of the year.
